As we move through the remainder of this term, there are several dates that the government have put in the calendar to ease Coronavirus restrictions. As a school, we have put things in place since September that have followed guidelines and advice. We believe that we have done this, whilst also taking a sensible approach so that the children are disrupted by the least amount.

When restrictions begin to ease, governors of the school are in full agreement that we should continue with the things that we have in place at the moment, until the end of the summer term. This will be reviewed in the summer holidays.

As a school community, we have worked tirelessly to keep the virus at bay and out of school as much as possible. Everybody knows the routines in place in school at the moment and these are working. We will try to hold events in school for the children, in some format, that we obviously could not do last year. We feel it is best to adopt a cautious approach in the final weeks of term to keep everyone as safe as possible leading to the summer holidays, where hopefully, we can all enjoy them.
