The stone age girl

One beautiful Morning at 7:30 am I decided to go for a ride on my bright red scooter on the field, but as soon as I walked out of my house I fell into an eternal abyss!!!

As soon as I woke up I heard a loud noise, so I slowly stumbled towards it even though it was pouring down with rain and there she was something that looked like someone from the stone age. Also she was animal skins and a grass skirt. She said "hello."

After that she showed me how to make cloths and I put some on myself actually. She also showed me her bed which was made out of rocks (I figured out my new friends name was Roxelin).

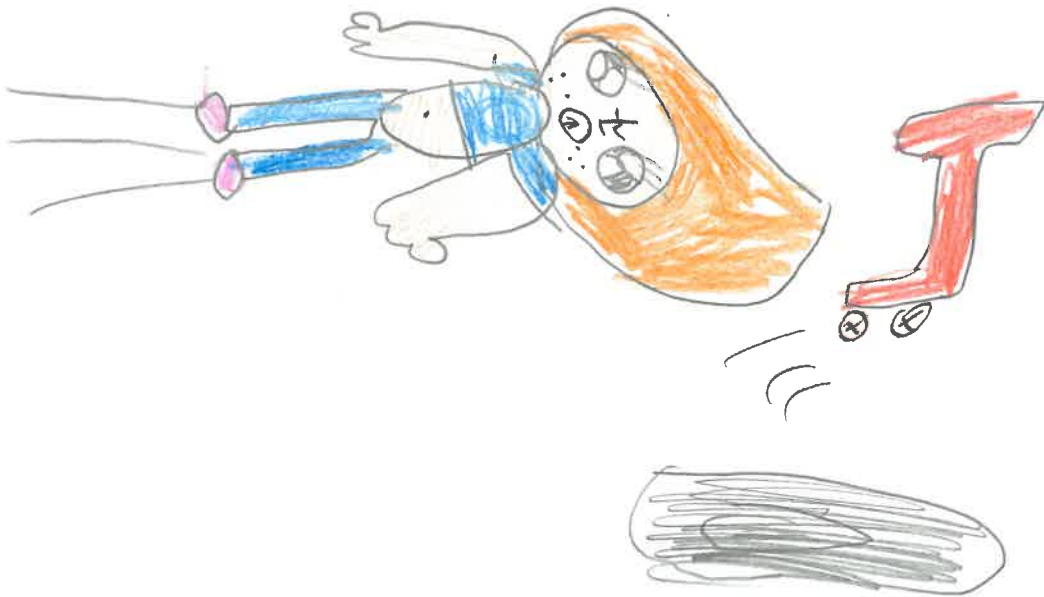

One afternoon at 2:30 we quickly skipped to a cave to see animal paintings, and we added some pictures ourselves. Even though there weren't many paints.

Next we jogged to the beautiful forest to collect sap for cooking sauce and on hair, cloths and tools.

Suddenly a furious tiger chased us, until the ground gave way and I fell down down down!!!

When I woke up I could see flying cars
so I thought I was in the future years past but I've never forgotten my friend roxelin. Now
I am an archeologist to find signs of Roxelin.
was it a dream? maybe or maybe not.

Violet's Cape

Yesterday, Jenny came to talk to our class about a nurse's cape that belonged to her mother in WW2.

Jenny's mother

Jenny's mother, Violet, trained to be a nurse for 3 years from 1939 to 1942. In 1942, after she had finished training in the RVI Newcastle hospital, she joined the army in 1942 to be a nurse. She died when she was 91 years old.

The cape

Violet had a khaki green cape that she wore in the war. When Violet was nursing the injured, they gave badges to her so she sewed them to the inside of the cape because she wasn't supposed to have the badges. She ended up with 15 badges! The cape had 2 brass buttons.

The events

She mainly went to nurse in Italy and Belgium. When the war ended Violet went to help in India and she hated the spicy food. Violet got a desert rat badge because she nursed soldiers from North Africa.

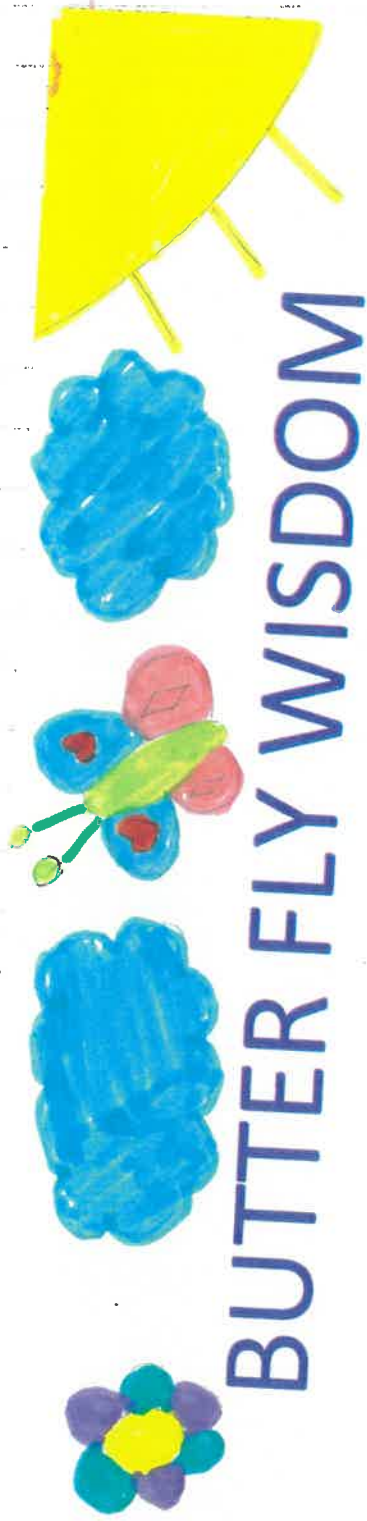

What I learned

I learnt that Violet was a hero in WW2 because she helped the Allies and even the Axis. She helped sailors and airmen. Her cape was 77 years old.

My favourite part

My favourite part was getting to hold the cape and getting to look at all 15 badges. The khaki green cape was really cool and it was nicely textured and the badges looked like little ancient artefacts.

The Bongfire

Wearing her yellow jumper and brown skirt,
The bongfire collected applause from the crowd.
Donning her black boots and smoky-grey cap,
She thought she looked sublime.

She writhes and smokes on the spot;
That was quite a sight.
She spits out sparks,
She gobbles wood -
As much as she ever could.

Her expression was wild;
It was excitable,
You wouldn't trust her -
She was too unpredictable.

She was yelling:
"Give me more wood!"
"Give it to me now!"

Then I got a bucket of water.
"Put that back in the -" Phut!
She was very put out!
